From the President's Pen

First and foremost thank you to the many members who attended the AGM last month. It may have been a record turn-out and I'll credit that to Mr. David Eby, MLA. Thank you, Sir.

a productive year! Thank you to Christine Samson and her Nomination Committee members, Margaretta Shirkoff and Shirley Hurl, for bringing us all together.

Congratulations to the Board of Directors, Brock House Society, 2017/18 (see below). It met on the Thursday after the AGM. It was a topnotch "first" meeting because the enthusiasm and cooperation in the room were more than encouraging. Here's to

And, as always, see you around the House!

Workshop News

The craftsmen in the Brock House workshop are capable of producing a variety of custom projects including wooden toys, stools, cutting boards, trays, tables, benches, and wood turnings for the annual Summer Fair in July and the Christmas fair in November. Some projects such as the cedar and redwood planters crafted by Wally Malinowski and Ron Nielson can be cut to specific dimensions to fit any garden or balcony. They can also be equipped with legs to minimize the back strain caused by stooping to weed the plantings. However, people are not looking for planters or lawn furniture at the Brock House Christmas Fair and by July when the summer sale is held most people have already been growing their gardens for two or three months. To allow for the impact of chance and seasonality the workshop does consider taking on custom projects between the fairs. If you have a custom woodworking project that you wish to discuss please contact me, the Workshop Coordinator, at the Brock House workshop on Thursday morning or e-mail wramey@interchange.ubc.ca with "Brock House Projects" in the subject line.

“Our graduate architectural studio at the University of British Columbia is exploring the idea of aging within Vancouver and the role the built environment should play in this evolving issue. Rather than focusing on housing alone, the traditional territory in architecture for addressing aging, this studio is going to look at the city. We are confronting the stereotypes and assumptions our society and architecture as a profession makes about this demographic. We are looking at the categories that define the aged, what they want and need, and finally their networks, both social and familial.

In February we met with several members of Brock House Society to learn about some of the most pressing concerns for seniors. In the end we got a diverse range of ideas which we have spent the last month turning into a series of small proposals for Vancouver for the emerging neighborhood, False Creek Flats.

We invite the members of Brock House to once again join us to see the our final projects and give us a chance to share some of our lessons learned and show how those lessons translate into new architectural ideas. While we cannot claim to have resolved everything in just a short period, we assure you the projects will contain some thought-provoking ideas from students who will one day be responsible for shaping our cities.”

Brock House Cycling Group

Daffodils are in bloom. Time to pump up the tires and get our weekly ride going again.

Usually once a week, several members meet to go cycling together. We sometimes begin at Brock, more often from another location. Rides are typically Tuesday or Wednesday morning. The destination is often a lunch location.

Rides are mostly 25K with only a few hundred feet vertical. Brock house to Coal Harbour via Lost Lagoon is one of our popular rides. Another is the West Richmond Dyke to Steveston starting at the Olympic Oval.

Our style of riding is weather dependent. In order to maintain flexibility in all aspects, primary communication of planned rides is by e-mail to those Members who have expressed an interest. When the timing is right, we also post rides in the Weekly Update.

To join the e-mail list please e-mail the Convener, Frank Jameson, at

FrankJ21@hotmail.com

Have you been traveling recently?

I will be convening the Travel Talks starting with the Fall Program and I am looking for people, members and non-members, to step forward to share their own travel experiences in this very popular Monday morning series. Presentations can be in either digital slide or video format. And the good news is that if you don't know how, we can help you learn the software you will need!

I'm also looking for two or three members to help facilitate the series by working with me on a committee which would meet three times a year to plan the series.

Here's a little bit of history. Monday Travel Talks have been a regular part of the Brock House program since the society opened in the late 1970's. For many years, the late Dick Stace-Smith convened the talks alone until ill health struck him down suddenly a couple of years ago. It was just one of the many lasting contributions Dick made in his retirement years.

Then the current convenor, Dietram Zell ably picked up the task and has continued the good work with assistance from John Smith. They have facilitated a wonderful array of presentations about your travels to all corners of the world.

Speaking as an occasional presenter and attendee, but also as a member of the board, I thank Dick, Dietram and John and the many, many presenters on behalf of all Brock House members for their contributions over the years.

If you can help, either on the committee or by presenting a talk in the fall, please phone me at 604-737-9004 or email me at jpleshakov@telus.net.

Yarn and Needle Crafts

The Yarn and Needle Crafts group are always in need of donations of whole balls of good new yarn to make projects to sell at the Summer and Christmas Fairs. Batches of several balls of the same yarn are especially useful in order to make larger projects. We would also be very pleased to receive donations of new handmade items from Brock House members who sew, knit, crochet, embroider, weave, quilt, etc. to sell at the Summer Fair. Please bring donations to the Meyer Room on Mondays between 9:30 and 11:30, or leave at the Office. Thank you.

The Brock House Sing-Along

As always we are happy to welcome newcomers. Join us any Monday afternoon from 1:30 to 3:00 p.m. in the Conservatory. Leora Williams plays the piano and Joane Sunahara accompanies with her recorder. All members are welcome. Come and sing, put a smile on your face and meet some friendly people. Relax and enjoy the songs of our era as well as seasonal favorites. We make our sing-alongs a fun activity that generates smiles and brightens our day.

For Canada's 150th anniversary, we have assembled and are learning a new Canadian Song Set. We are so fortunate to live in this country and singing about our country just feels good. This Canadian Song Set is an ongoing work in process – if you have a song to contribute, please bring the music to our Monday afternoon sessions or drop it off in the Brock House office.

In addition to our Mondays at Brock House, we visit seniors' residences each month for a participatory sing-along with their residents. These outings are very rewarding experiences for both our members and the home residents. In March we visited Cavell Gardens and on Thursday, April 20 will visit Tapestry Wesbrook.

Brock House/Kerrisdale Choir

The BC Choral Federation coordinates a two day semiannual event for seniors choirs in BC. Many choirs attend creating a choir of 2 or 3 hundred people. They practice the songs for two days then have a concert. Each individual choir that attends first gives a little performance then there is a massed choir of all participants. It is quite an event. This year the event is in White Rock and a small section of the Brock House Choir will attend. This smaller section of the Brock House Choir will also put on a small concert at Brock House after the event.

Come have a bit of lunch then listen to us sing for you!

The centuries-old charm of Japan's cherry blossoms

A quick history on the cultural and historical significance of the beloved flower

The time of year much awaited by many people across the country is finally near: the blooming period of the nation's beloved sakura (cherry blossoms).

Numerous people plan hanami (cherry-blossom viewing) under the trees, one of the biggest spring events on the Japanese calendar.

But when did people first start cherishing sakura? And when and how did they start gathering for viewing parties under the trees?

Following are questions and answers about sakura and hanami:

What does hanami mean?

Hana literally means "flowers" in Japanese, and mi means "viewing."

But when the two terms are combined, it usually means cherry-blossom viewing, indicating cherry blossoms have been adored for centuries.

Until the Nara Period (710-794), the nation's most favorite flower was ume (Japanese apricot), most likely because of a strong cultural influence at that time from China, where ume originated.

But in the Heian Period (794-1185), sakura became more popular among Japanese aristocrats.

Many experts link this transition to the 894 abolition of Kentoshi, Japan's official delegations to China. The abolition cut off Japan from Chinese influence and helped people cultivate their own culture based on the local climate and nature, they say.

After the mid-Heian Period, "the flower" mentioned in poems usually referred to sakura, even if it wasn't stated explicitly, according to Yozaburo Shirahata, professor of comparative culture studies at Chubu University who published the book "Hanami to Sakura" ("Hanami and Cherry Blossoms") in 2000.

Did the Heian Period have hanami parties similar to now?

No. During the Heian Period, hanami was an elegant custom among the well-educated aristocracy only and did not involve crowds eating and drinking under cherry trees.

In 1598, the warlord Toyotomi Hideyoshi held an extravagant hanami party at Daigoji Temple in Kyoto for feudal lords and their followers, but the practice had yet to spread to the common people.

According to Shirahata, today's hanami parties are characterized by three elements: crowds, food and drinks, and a large number of sakura trees.

Today's hanami parties trace their roots to after the mid-1600s in Edo, today's Tokyo. One of the earliest hanami venues was Ueno of today's Taito Ward, which is still a very popular place with numerous sakura trees.

How did hanami become popular with non-aristocrats?

During the Edo Period (1603-1868), Japan enjoyed freedom from warfare at home and abroad for more than two centuries. This allowed common people, in particular those living in Edo, to nurture a rich culture of their own. Edo was the capital of the Tokugawa shogunate.

Tokugawa Yoshimune (1684-1751), the eighth shogun, planted numerous sakura trees and created several hanami venues in Edo for common people to enjoy. This, too, greatly helped spread the hanami practice among the public, Shirahata wrote in his book.

Among the Edo hanami sites Yoshimune created were those in Asukayama, Mukojima, Gotenyama and Koganei. Some of those places are still among the most popular hanami spots in Tokyo today.

Are we seeing descendants of the Edo Period cherry trees?

Probably not. Until the end of the Edo Period, people viewed various cherry blossom varieties, including yamazakura, edohigan and kanzhakura.

But after the someiyoshino hybrid was artificially created, probably in the late Edo Period or early Meiji Era (1868-1912), the variety has become extremely popular in Japan thanks to its beautiful, slightly-pinkish blossoms.

Someiyoshino now probably accounts for 70 to 80 percent of all sakura trees in Japan, according to Toshiki Sato, professor at the University of Tokyo who published the book "Sakura ga Tsukutta Nippon" ("A Japan Created by Cherry Blossoms") in 2005.

All someiyoshino trees are planted using a technique called tsugiki (grafting). This means all existing someiyoshino trees have identical DNA, the exact reason most sakura in Japan blossom, then subsequently fall, almost simultaneously.

This synchronization makes the scenery of cherry blossoms even more stunning, probably another reason someiyoshino are dominant in Japan.

If it was good enough for Henry VIII, it is good enough for us!

For the last few years Brock House has been a wonderful source of lawn bowlers; members sign up here, come up to the West Point Grey Lawn Bowling Club, take five lessons and then are competent enough to join the club as active playing members!

So, a little about the sport, which we sometimes call "curling on grass".

It is played in teams of one, two, three or four; it involves bowling a bowl (not a "ball") down the green, trying to get it as close as possible to a little white ball, called the "jack". Sounds easy? Well, the bowls have a bias - they don't roll straight - and your opponents will try to thwart you at every turn! But it is fun, social, inexpensive, and you can participate as much or little as you wish. We have a lot of fun, on and off the greens! Age range? 10 to 90!

Versions of the game date back to 5,000 BCE – although no doubt the equipment was a bit different! Henry VIII was an avid lawn bowler but banned the game for those who were not "well to do". Why? They spent too much time bowling and not enough time at their work!

And we all know the story of Sir Francis Drake who was playing a game when notified that the Armada had been sighted and said, "We can finish the game and thrash the Spaniards, too." And he did!

So check out the write-up in the Spring Calendar and come join us...you won't regret it!

CANADA LIT READ - A - THON

April 1st to August 1st

The Program Committee invites Brock House members to participate in a Canada Lit Read-a-thon from April 1st to August 1st. Here's how:

Read any book by a Canadian author. On a slip of paper, write the title of the book, the author and a 5 to 7 word review. Put the slip in the box on the Greeter's desk. The slips will be collected regularly, and in August the person with the most book reviews will receive a gift card to purchase a book.

How do I use the defibrillator?

Members regularly ask about our Automated External Defibrillator (AED - which is located on the main floor in the hallway leading to the east exit). Those of you who would like to learn how to use it, go to youtube.com and type "Philips AED Training Video" in the search bar at the top of the page. You may be surprised by how easy it is to use.
